Investigating the Role of Mental Imagery in Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder

Ethics Approval Reference: R70783/RE001

We are interested in learning more from you about your experiences of obsessional and compulsive problems and mental imagery

We are looking for UK volunteers aged 18 years and over, to help us understand more about the role of mental imagery (or 'pictures in your mind') in obsessive-compulsive disorder. Your help would be very valuable - understanding more about this could help future research enhance treatments for people experiencing obsessive-compulsive disorder.

You would be invited to take part in two online study sessions. Participating would involve:

1. Completing questionnaires online/over the phone (30-40 mins), and
2. Taking part in a video call with the researcher, where you would be asked to complete short tasks related to mental imagery (up to 30 mins).

Can you help us? Would you like more information?

Or contact us to find out more: rachael.beale@hmc.ox.ac.uk

There is no obligation to take part.

In acknowledgement of your time and kind dedication to our study, and to support the good work of charities in the UK for those experiencing the types of problems focused on in this study, we would like to donate £2 from our research funds on your behalf to your choice of OCD UK or OCD Action.
